

An interfaith, grassroots movement for Pennsylvanians of faith and good will prepared to advocate for religious liberty and social justice to protest when religion is manipulated for political purposes.

An United Effort Creates Loud Voice.

In America, religion and government are becoming increasingly entwined. Faith is being manipulated to influence policy and to advocate political strategy.

The Interfaith Alliance brings people of faith and good will together with the message that:

The many faiths of our nation strengthen each other.

Government serves the people best when it leaves room for religious diversity.

We focus on:
The erosion of religious liberty by those who would use government to force one religion on all and by those who would distort religion for their own political purposes.
Issues of human dignity, as poverty, in which religion has so much guidance to give.

What We Will Do With Your Support

Expand our efforts to form chapters and network with others throughout Pennsylvania

Continue to hold monthly meetings in Harrisburg to learn about different traditions and how we can work together to strengthen our country

Join with other groups that support religious liberty

Oppose any legislation that will result in infringement of individual religious liberties

Stand up for the rights of the oppressed, disenfranchised, and discriminated against. Support victims of discrimination.
